

We connect products. Leitwert leverages the potential of digital technologies to enable new value creating solutions for the key challenges in industry and healthcare. Based on our expertise in electronics, asynchronous programming and web technologies we develop modular solutions to revolutionize the industrial and health care sector. We are competent on every level of the IoT stack.

Join our team as

Front End Software Engineer (f/m)

Your role.

You develop beautiful and functional web front ends and apps for our products and custom client projects with focus on usability. You are part of the advancement of our proprietary software stacks.

Your responsibilities.

- You design, implement, maintain and test custom client projects such as web - and mobile applications
- You hold on-site workshops and meetings and are the person of contact for technical consulting and communication with the customer
- You take care of the project management by writing offers and requirements and keep track of the time and money budget of your projects
- You work in close collaboration with the back end developers
- You are the deputy of our CTO and support in Human Resource tasks such as screening and interviewing candidates
- You support the business development team with your technical expertise

Your profile.

You have a positive, proactive and open personality. You work independently and easily adapt to new challenges. You convince with your hands-on working attitude.

And you have:

- >5 years of hands on experience in front end and web development
- Exceptional programming skills in JavaScript, CSS, HTML and sound experience in web development
- Experience with JavaScript frontend frameworks such as VueJS; React or similar
- Competences with revision control systems (Git) and testing frameworks
- Fluent in English (German is advantageous)

Preferably you also have:

- Experience with cyber security
- Skills in cross platform mobile app development (e.g. using Ionic / Quasar and Cordova)

Our offer.

Leitwert offers diverse project-based work in a highly motivated team of experienced developers. With our start-up spirit we trust in everyone's ability to create great stuff and count on the success of our dynamic interdisciplinary team. We empower the people to actively shape the corporate culture. Our office is in Zurich nicely situated right next to the lake. Together with you we invent the world of tomorrow.

Are you an ambitious team player who convinces us with elegant code? In that case, we'd be delighted to have you on board.

Hand in your complete application to: jobs@leitwert.ch